

Actis Technologies expands high definition portfolio

Source: DQChannels

Date: 29 October, 2007

Actis Technologies has announced the availability of its expanded high definition video product assortment from LifeSize Communications. The new products promise to deliver telepresence quality video that allows natural face-to-face communication by eliminating travel time and cost across the world.

"Our clients want high-quality, cost-effective video solutions that help their businesses do more and travel less," said Abhimanyu Gupta, Director, Actis Technologies. "These new products will help us provide even better value to our customers and let them put the power of video to work for their business."

Actis' expands its range of HD video products offerings from simple point-to-point video systems to highly customized, multi-display and multi-HD camera telepresence systems. The new products launched are - 'LifeSize Express, LifeSize Team MP and LifeSize Conference'.

LifeSize Express, can deliver high definition, point-to-point video communication experience at a significantly lower price. LifeSize Express similar in size to a wireless router, offers telepresence quality HD video. LifeSize Express is a high definition video communications system designed to bring people together, allowing to travel less and be present wherever and whenever users need to be."